

Ballroom at the top of the Hill

Dolce Valley Forge, located just outside of Philadelphia, recently completed an elaborate $20 million renovation, bringing a new touch of sophistication to the King of Prussia area. You no longer have to travel to Center City to find a world-class venue for hosting special occasions. Luxury weddings, bar and bat mitzvahs and other special celebrations at Dolce Valley Forge set the standard for once-in-a-lifetime events.

The 7,200 square foot ballroom at Dolce Valley Forge features floor to ceiling windows, allowing for a spectacular view of the sunset. This ballroom can also be divided to accommodate parties of varying capacities. Katie Kienle, the hotel's event extraordinaire, is available to help execute all aspects of any type of celebration. "Planning a wedding or any special event is exciting but can also be stressful. My job is to provide you with patience and creativity, to plan the event of your dreams," says Kienle. From determining the perfect décor and menu to working closely with the band or DJ, Katie's attention to detail ensures a memorable experience for all who attend.

Executive Chef Jeffrey Power raises the bar with dynamic culinary selections. Inspired by local produce and continental cuisine, each dish is a combination of delicious flavors and textures. Full-service catering is provided for all functions that take place at the hotel.

Situated on nine lush acres, Dolce Valley Forge is one of the only hotels offering the unique option of holding your ceremony and/or cocktail hour outside on the beautiful grounds. Another perk is the allowance that the hotel provides for floral centerpieces. Additionally, on the night of their wedding, the bride and groom will stay in the honeymoon suite, and will be invited back to the same room on their one-year anniversary. T. Burke's, the hotel's lounge, is the perfect place to have an after-party and Restaurant Three01 is ideal for brunch the next day. A private brunch can also be held in the ballroom.

When it comes time to celebrate an important event, everyone has their own vision of the most sensational celebration. No matter what your vision may be, Dolce Valley Forge will help make your special day a reality.
